

Who is

Junior Town Watch

Junior Town Watch is a program designed to involve the youth of our community in the local Town Watch group.

It is a means for youth to become active in community improvement projects and to understand the need for participation in community safety outreach and education projects.

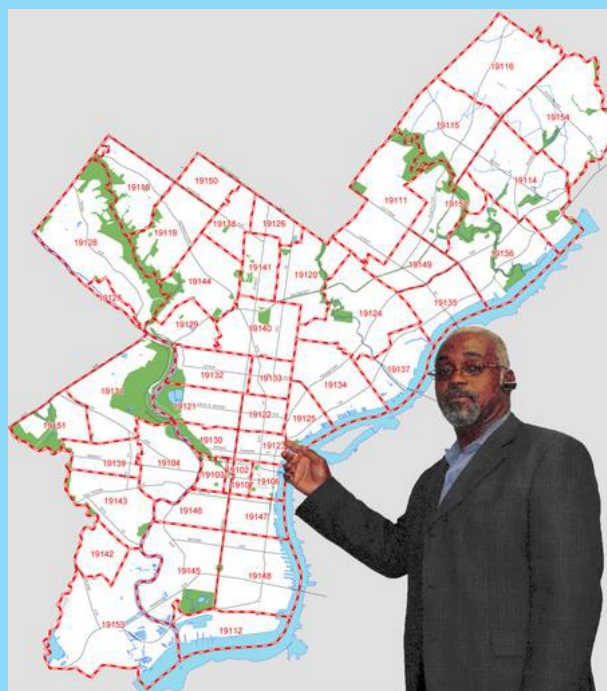

Junior Town Watch members do not patrol.

How?

Many groups have already launched their Junior Town Watch Initiatives.

Town Watch Integrated Services provides a group with guidance in ways to utilize their youth and offer them experience in a community project. Their volunteering for Town Watch can also count towards their community services a requirement for graduation from High school.

When?

"Raise a child in the way that he/she should go: they may stray from the path but they will return to the path" "Teach them well and let them lead the way."

The words of that passage and song capture what many of us feel. It is our responsibility to engage the youth in meaningful activities under the guidance of dedicated and caring adults.

Town Watch members have proven themselves to be caring citizens with much to offer. The youth can benefit from your experience and your commitment to community improvement.

Why?

As the headlines blurt out stories about the impact that violence in our society has on our youth, the time for action is now.

The young people of this generation are in need of guidance and opportunity to enhance their future possibilities. Junior Town Watch offers this view.

Where?

Junior Town Watch is needed throughout the city. Just as Town Watch groups function in every neighborhood we must engage our youth. To secure the future it must be done through our youth and involving them in the process to secure their success.

"I believe the children are the future. Teach them well and let them lead the way."
